One door, two colours, a range of design possibilities Two-colour internal door sets from Huga for even more customisation options

Interior design is constantly developing and more and more people are looking for individual solutions to customise their living spaces. Huga, the Gütersloh-based long-established manufacturer of internal doors which showcase premium workmanship, is responding to this trend with its two-colour internal door sets, setting new standards in interior design. The two-colour sets offer architects, building owners and renovators a wide range of options for designing rooms to suit your requirements.

In the world of interior design, customisation and modern design are becoming increasingly important. An internal door can make all the difference, as it not only serves to divide rooms, but also plays a key role in the room concept. The two-colour internal door sets from Huga feature a multi-coloured design and make it possible to combine different colours and materials as desired. The combinations of real lacquer doors with a timber frame are particularly appealing. This harmonious fusion of real lacquer and natural timber not only creates a beautiful contrast, but is also a real eye-catcher in any room.

Design freedom when selecting colours and materials

With its two-colour internal door sets, Huga offers a wide range of colours and materials. In addition to the six preferred colours of white, grey, “Hygge” grey, taupe, anthracite and black in the real lacquer series, architects, building owners and renovators can have Huga internal doors painted in almost any colour from the RAL K5 colour fan, also referred to as RAL to choose. This wide range of colours, which includes various shades of white and grey as well as vibrant colours, opens up almost endless possibilities when it comes to customising your interior design and allows you to create doors that are tailored to your personal preferences. According to the manufacturer, the lacquers offer durability, colour brilliance and a resistant, easy-care surface finish.

It is not just the colour scheme of the door leafs that offers scope for creativity. The timber frames can also be selected to match the furnishings of each room and are available in a variety of types of timber – from light timbers such as maple and oak to darker variants such as walnut or smoked oak. These options help create a warm and inviting atmosphere that harmoniously complements the interior design.

The two-colour internal door sets are ideal for those who value a harmonious yet contrasting interior design. Whether in living areas, in offices or in public buildings – the two-colour internal door sets from Huga create stylish accents and add to a unique room concept.
